'Tis the Season… for Workplace Injuries

Every year around the holidays, workplace injury rates see a jump. The holiday season is an exciting time of year, but it is also dangerous. The injuries are often caused by some combination of added responsibilities, stress, distractions, or simply a rush to get the job done. It is important that we all be careful not to let our guards down at this time of year.

- Plan your work
- Look out for one another
- Pay attention to the work at hand
- Do not get in a hurry
- Use the proper tools for the job
- Go home safe!

Distracted Holiday Driving & Inclement Weather

This month, millions of Americans will pack up the car and travel to celebrate the holidays with loved ones. In 2018, AAA forecasted that more than 102 million people would take a road trip during the holiday season. According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), there are generally more motor vehicle traffic crash fatalities during holiday periods than during non-holiday periods, and 799 roadway fatalities are forecasted to occur between the coming Christmas and New Year's Day. This year make sure your family is as safe as possible by being aware of one of the leading preventable causes of automobile crashes: distracted driving

In the event of inclement weather, please use your best judgement. If you feel that it is unsafe to drive, don't! Be sure to check with your superintendent if your jobsite will open. If you can't come in let your superintendent know.
